Community and Partnerships	SHARING & CARING; Enjoying food and meeting new people	yes	No	If Yes/If No, how could we do it?
Our parents and/or the wider community are actively involved in growing and cooking activities in our school. (inviting parents and/or community members to help organise, contribute to, and attend growing and cooking activities, with good response rate).	Our parents and community members often take part in school growing and cooking activities.
Our parents can buy or collect organic and/or local produce at the school, or we direct them to an alternative local outlets.	Our parents can buy or collect local, organic food at our school, or are given information about where they can get them.
Food and cooking education is available in our school to parents and community members out of school hours.	Our school has food and cooking lessons for parents and community members after school or at weekends.
We host regular visits about the Food for Life Partnership from other schools and stakeholders.	Other schools visit our school and learn about the FFLP.
